

System: Tree detection

A model that predicts tree locations in urban areas using Sentinel-2 satellite imagery and a U-Net segmentation model trained on labelled tree register data from multiple European cities. The dataset is split into training and evaluation subsets during training.

Context: Infrared.city project

The system operates in the context of urban environmental analysis and uses Sentinel-2 multispectral satellite imagery together with tree register data, tested urban geometry data from OpenStreetMap and other additional context data sources.

